Pathways to Reconciliation: Decolonizing Child and Youth Advocacy Systems

In partnership with the Manitoba Advocate for Children and Youth (MACY)

CARe RTP Students: Jeff Black, Cynthia Côté, Rachael Pascoe, Amanda Keller
Manitoba Advocate for Children and Youth (MACY): Sherry Gott, Kelly Gossfeld, Alexandra Guemili, Lindsay Ridgley, Matthew Maher, Karlee Campbell, Julie Oliver
CARe Team: Dr. Ashley Stewart-Tufescu, Dr. Tracie Afifi, Julie-Anne McCarthy
Collaborators: Elder Albert McLeod, Dr. Michael Yellow Bird

The Context

- A large proportion of the families that MACY works with are Indigenous, yet services are embedded in systems reflective of colonial approaches.

- Through thoughtful discussion, reflection, and consultation with MACY leaders, Indigenous Elders and Indigenous Researchers, this project aims to explore how MACY can strengthen their commitment to decolonization and reconciliation.

Objectives

1. To explore MACY staff's understanding of decolonization and reconciliation.
2. To examine how MACY staff perceive the organization's commitment to decolonization and reconciliation.
3. To identify strengths and areas for improvement in advancing decolonization and reconciliation across their policies and practices.
